Reported cases of Dengue spike after months of steady rainfall

Minister of Public Health, Sports and Drugs, Richard Visser, called a press conference at the Department of Health in Oranjestad on Wednesday, November 17 to bring the public up to date on the status of Dengue cases on Aruba following a busy storm season with heavy rainfall.

Presenting the hard data on the number of reported cases as of the end of last month was Maribelle Tromp of the Department of Epidemiology. Reported case have been steadily increasing since week 32 (August) of this year with 59 possible cases being reported in week 44, (October/November.) At present, the labs report 86 confirmed cases of Dengue and 335 suspected cases pending test results.

Since week 32 the reported number of cases has edged into what is considered "outbreak" status, though 2010 as yet has not nearly as many cases as was reported in 2009, which was feeling the effects of a very busy storm season beginning the summer before.

Health officials remind the public it is important to be aware of the symptoms of Dengue and the consequences of repeated infection. Family doctors have been very cooperative in reporting suspected cases demonstrating symptoms of high fever for 2 to 7 days, severe pain in the joints and around the eyes, which also show as sensitivity to light, and usually a rash; possibly nausea and/or diarrhea. Dengue often mimics flu symptoms, so some are not as conscientious about visiting their doctors as they should be. Also reporting at the prescribed times for testing is necessary to confirm the presence of Dengue and the second test administered 2 weeks later is needed to type the strain.

There are 4 strains of the Dengue virus, some more debilitating than others. Once an individual has contracted a particular strain of Dengue, they will be immune to it for the remainder of their lives.

Billionaire Donald Trump eyes 2012 presidential run

NEW YORK CITY (AFP) - Developer tycoon Donald Trump has his eyes on the United States' ultimate real estate: the White House.

Trump, the brash billionaire star of his own reality show, "The Apprentice," told ABC news he is seriously considering a run as a Republican in 2012 and could "easily" spend more than 200 million dollars of his own money.

"It could be fun because I'd like to see some positive things happen for the country. I'm going to make a decision probably by June," Trump told ABC's anchor George Stephanopoulos.

One principal policy as president would be to take on China's mighty economy, he said.

China is "getting away with murder" by manipulating its currency to US disadvantage, he said, calling the United States a "whipping post."

"The respect for this country is just not there," he said. "I have many people from China that I do business with, they laugh at us. They feel we're fools. And almost being led by fools. And they can't believe what they're getting away with."

This was not Trump's first trial balloon about a presidential run. He explored the idea in 1999.

If he did challenge for the nomination, he might well find himself up against another controversial character with her own reality show: former Alaskan governor Sarah Palin.

US: Cholera strain may last years in Haiti environment

WASHINGTON (AFP) - Haiti has been hit by a particularly "virulent" strain of cholera that could stay in the country for years, even if health measures will now limit its human toll, US officials said yesterday.

Not only do Haitians have little or no immunity to fight a disease that has been absent from Haiti for at least 50 years, "this strain of cholera seems to be more virulent than normal strains," US official Thomas Adams told reporters.

Adams, the special US coordinator for Haiti, also said that following January's devastating earthquake the international community knew that Haitians were susceptible to waterborne diseases like cholera.

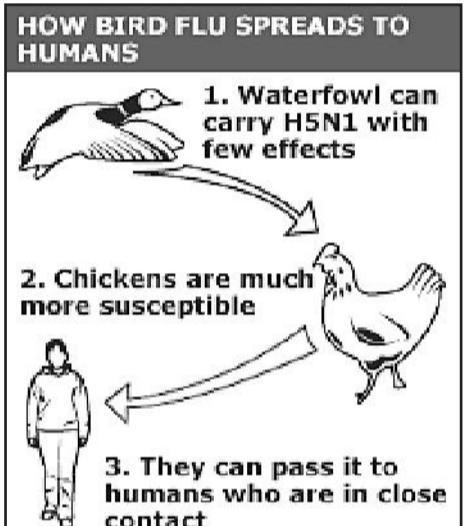

However, they expected the disease was more likely to

Hong Kong confirms first human case of bird flu since 2003

HONG KONG, China (AFP) - Hong Kong scrambled yesterday to contain any outbreak of bird flu, seeking to reassure the public after the teeming city recorded its first human case of the illness since 2003.

The government has raised its avian influenza alert level to "serious," meaning there is a "high risk" of people contracting the potentially fatal disease, a spokesman for the Department of Health told AFP.

But officials said there was little risk of person-to-person transmission, after a 59-year-old woman tested positive for Influenza A (H5), a variant of bird flu. She was in a serious condition in a hospital isolation ward.

Hong Kong recorded its last human case of bird flu in 2003, and had the world's first major outbreak among humans in 1997, when six people died.

Department of Rent and Consumers Affairs celebrates its 14th anniversary

ORANJESTAD—On November 19, 1996, the Aruba government introduced the Rent and Consumers Affairs Department. The objective of this department is to promote a more balanced management of rent- and consumers affairs. The department is very popular, but erroneously known as Huur Commissie – Rent Commission. In reality, assisting the Rent Commission is just one of the many services this department offers.

Rent Commission is a independent commission instituted by the government since 1939 and is in charge of the implementation of the ordinance that addresses all rental matters and issues. The government, thru the Rent Commission, tries to moderate for a large part on the rental conditions (price, termination of rental contract, physical condition of the rented house/apartment).

One of the task of the Rent Commission is to settle a dispute or make declarations between the landlord and the tenant on, for example, the price, and if necessary, stipulate a reasonable rental price and expenses involved with the rent. If a landlord and a tenant has a dispute or a difference in opinion regarding the rental price or termination of a rental contract they must go to the Rent Commision department.

The Rent Commision then will attend both parties and based on the explanations and facts given by both parties, will give their final declaration on the case.

Besides that, the Department of Rent and Consumer Affairs also offers the following services to tenants and landlords:

- General information related with rent;
- Intermediation;
- Termination of rental contract or agreement (thru the Rent Commission dept);
- Configuration of a rental price (thru the Rent Commission dept);
- Permission to increase the rental price (thru the Rent Commision dept.);

The Department of Rent and Consumer Affairs, on the other hand is developing other services that will help the consumer as well as the merchant to understand their rights.

Consumer is a broad label for any individuals or households that use goods and services generated within the economy. This term is very ample and refers to almost anyone. The law, nevertheless, defines the consumer as an individual who does not buy or use a service for his business or profession but as an individual. The law also defines the vendor as an individual who executes a sale in name of his profession or business. An agreement between the vendor and consumer is called a consumer purchase agreement.

A consumer purchase is an agreement in which, by law, the vendor and the consumer has rights and obligations. But, in the law's point of view, when closing an purchase agreement between a vendor and consumer, it is the vendor who is the expert. Because of that, the law focuses more on protecting the consumer as they are the weak party in the agreement.

The Department of Rent and Comsumers Affairs provides service on all the above mentiond issues, by giving information and guidande to all parties involved.

For more information and questions on their services readers may contact the department at tel. 582-9914, or visit them at wayaca 33. E-mail is bhc@aruba.gov.aw.

KLM airline backing Curacao space-flight venture

The island of Curaçao

CAPE CANAVERAL, Florida - KLM Royal Dutch Airlines is partnering with a commercial suborbital spaceflight venture planning to operate out of the Caribbean island of Curaçao, officials said yesterday.

KLM, a division of Europe's largest airline, Air France-KLM, has purchased "a few" tickets for suborbital spaceflights through Space Experience Curacao, a private venture backed by two Dutch entrepreneurs that plans to operate a two-seater Lynx suborbital spaceship being developed by XCOR Aerospace of Mojave, California.

"We're enthusiastic about this," spokeswoman for the airline, Gedi Schrijver said.

She declined to be more specific about the number of tickets purchased by KLM bought or how they would be used. The advertised price for rides are $95,000. One person rides alongside the pilot.

A recent news release, jointly issued by XCOR and Space Experience Curacao, said KLM plans to offer suborbital spaceflights for frequent flyer mileage redemptions and in vacation packages.

Space Experience Curacao

announced last month its intention to lease a Lynx suborbital spacecraft, pending U.S. government approvals for the vehicle to be located on the island of Curaçao in the Netherlands Antilles. Commercial spaceflights are scheduled to be in January 2014. XCOR would provide operational support at the proposed Space Port Curaçao.

A similar service, backed by billionaire Richard Branson's London-based Virgin Group, is setting up commercial space operations in New Mexico.

Mojave, California-based Scaled Composites, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Northrop Grumman Corp, has begun test flights of a six-passenger, two-pilot suborbital spaceship it built for aspiring space line operator Virgin Galactic, which has collected more than $50 million in deposits for rides that cost $200,000 per person.

Both ventures will offer passengers a few minutes of weightlessness beyond Earth's atmosphere and a view of the planet from a vantage point of about 65 miles (105 km) above ground.

Reported cases of Dengue spike after months of steady rainfall

Dengue can be life-threatening for infants; the first infection is rarely so for adults and healthy youngsters. The greatest danger of Dengue is being infected by a different strain; when this happens, Hemorrhagic Fever can develop, which can prove deadly.

Minister Visser and Director of the Department of Health, Derek-Ian Blok remind island residents and businesses to be very conscientious regarding prevention of the proliferation of the Aedes Aegypti mosquito, carrier of the Dengue virus. Censusing by the health department has found that one in three homes of the areas of greatest concentration of reported Dengue cases have proven to be breeding grounds for the mosquito. Individual households must take precautions to prevent the accumulation of standing water, particularly in plant pots, waste receptacles, pet water dishes, and fountains or pools. Muddy pools of rainwater are not a threat as Aedes Aegypti requires clean water, not dirty, in which to lay their eggs. However, litter which can provide a place for clean water to collect, no matter how small, does present a threat. Eggs of the Aedes Aegypti are also capable of surviving for a year, even after the water has dried up, and can hatch months afterwards, once water collects in the receptacle. Officials recommend the pan under the refrigerator be checked regularly. Police the grounds around your home or business up to a distance of 150 yards and remove all debris where rainwater might collect and remain clean.

23% of the reported cases are based out of the eastern outskirts of Oranjestad in the Dakota/Tarabana area. Paradera and Noord follow with 14% of the confirmed cases of Dengue. A larger percentage of those cases are women, (238) to men (183), but this can also be attributed to women being more conscientious about visiting their doctors and reporting for the testing. The majority of cases were reported among adults ages 25 to 64, with 8 cases among infants under 1 year old.

Among those reporting symptoms and being tested, 51% proved positive. Among the confirmed cases, 20% have suffered Dengue infections previously, sometimes twice, so repeated infection can result in Hemorrhagic Fever, but not absolutely.

Health officials are combating the situation by an or-

Facebook messaging poses risks for users: watchdog

SINGAPORE (AFP) – Facebook's new online messaging service makes users of the social networking site more vulnerable to identity theft by cybercriminals, computer security firm Sophos warned Thursday.

It urged users to be aware of the security risks before signing up for Facebook's next-generation online messaging service that blends online chat, text messages and other real-time conversation tools with traditional email.

"Users need to realise that these new features increase the attack surface on the Facebook platform, and make personal accounts all the more alluring for cyber-criminals to break into," said Sophos senior technology consultant Graham Cluley.

"Facebook accounts will now be linked with many more people in the users' social circles -- opening up new opportunities for identity fraudsters to launch attacks," he added in a press statement.

Sophos noted that fraudsters are increasingly using hacked Facebook accounts to send spam messages -- compared with traditional emails -- because they are more likely to be opened by recipients lured to think the messages came from friends.

"Users also need to be aware that Facebook will be storing a complete archive of all their communications with one person. This raises concerns as to how this data could be misused if it fell into the wrong hands," Cluley said.

"With this in mind, it will be critical for Facebook to implement more effective filtering mechanisms to prevent fraudsters from manipulating Facebook users into falling victim to new spams, scams and phishing attacks."

Sophos called on Facebook users to take greater vigilance in securing their accounts, including installing hard-to-crack passwords, updating their computer security systems and being careful about which applications link to their profiles.

Facebook's new messaging system was launched on Monday and includes facebook.com email addresses.

Referred to inside the Palo Alto, California-based firm as "Titan," the service will be slowly rolled out in coming months to users.

Approximately 350 million of Facebook's more than 500 million members fire off messages using its existing service, with more than four billion digital missives sent daily, Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg has said.

Market watchers say that with such a large user base, a free personalised facebook.com email service lays down a powerful challenge to the established email giants -- Microsoft's Hotmail, Yahoo! Mail and Google's Gmail.

Microsoft to put video clips in Bing Search results

Microsoft said Wednesday that it plans to beef up its Bing search results with embedded TV clips from its Bing TV service.

Extended TV listings and episode guides will be integrated into search results, along with clips and show information, a spokesman said via email.

Microsoft also announced MSN Montage, a way for users to mix up information sources from a given topic, including news, Twitter tweets, and images.

Although dwarfed by Google's market share in search, Microsoft executives have said that they've used the competition as a spur to innovate. The most recent improvement has been a partnership with Facebook to integrate social search results into Bing.

Earlier this year, Microsoft launched an enhanced entertainment section, also known as Bing Entertainment or Bing TV, which pulls video content from Hulu, CBS Entertainment, and other sources. Bing offers more than 1,500 shows and 20,000 full TV episodes, according to the company.

More importantly, however, Microsoft will begin to deliver video results to its Bing search results, providing a counter to Google, which shows YouTube clips inside its search results. "Extended TV listings and episode guides will be integrated into search results, along with clips and show information," Microsoft said.

Scientists warn of more rain, heat and hurricanes

WASHINGTON (AFP) – Hungry polar bears gathering along the tundra, twice as many record-breaking temperatures and stronger hurricanes are among the latest signs of climate change, scientists say.

And we can expect more rain, more drought and fiercer storms in the future if the world continues on its fossil-fuel gobbling track, they told reporters on a conference call Wednesday to discuss the year in global warming.

Michael Mann, a leading US scientist, said he just returned from a trip to Churchill, Manitoba, the Canadian shore town famous for its polar bears, where the sea ice they depend on for hunting seals has not yet formed because of warm temperatures.

"When you go up there you see the bears all along the coast on the tundra awaiting the sea ice to form and it hasn't formed yet," Mann said.

"This was for me a very tangible and personal opportunity to see the impacts of climate change firsthand," he said. "The Arctic is in many respects a harbinger of things to come on our planet."

Mann also pointed to research being presented on Capitol Hill by another climate scientist, Jerry Meehl of National Center for Atmospheric Research (NCAR), showing the number of record-breaking hot days is twice as high as the record cold days.

"Heat records are outpacing cold records at a factor of two to one now. That number is expected to increase to 20 to 1 by late this century if we continue on the course that we are on with fossil fuel burning," Mann said.

Some events, such as the 2003 European heat wave which killed about 35,000 people and this year's heat wave in Moscow would be "extremely unlikely to happen in the absence of climate change," he added.

Hurricane expert Greg Holland said the fiercest storms are already showing an uptick in frequency, and more powerful hurricanes lie ahead.

"If you just look at the Atlantic in the last 10 years, we have experienced three times as many Category 5 hurricanes as have occurred in previous history on a relative basis," he said.

"We now have consensus statements coming out from the scientists and indeed a lot of regional research is pointing all in the same direction. There is nothing going in the other direction," he said.

"And that is the very intense hurricanes, the very intense (Category) fours and fives are going to increase and they could be doubling or tripling."

Holland also predicted more rain and drought in the coming years.

"As the earth warms up the atmosphere can hold more water, if there is more water available there will be more rain. Paradoxically of course there is as a result of that more drought because the land dries out quicker."

According to Mark Serreze of the National Snow and Ice Data Center, the reduction of sea ice in the Arctic will have a growing impact on temperatures in the rest of the world.

Oberstaufen chief of touristic marketing Bianca Keybach poses at Hamburg's harbour on a trike equipped with Google Street View cameras after a press conference in Hamburg on the launch of Google's street info service "Street View" from 20 German cities, among them Berlin, Frankfurt/M. and Munich. Health & Living*Cholesterol-lowering drug shows promise

WASHINGTON (AFP) – An experimental drug to lower cholesterol has shown promise, according to a study presented Wednesday at a meeting of the American Heart Association.

The drug developed by pharmaceutical giant Merck is known as anacetrapib and showed significant decreases in "bad" cholesterol and likewise boosted "good" cholesterol levels.

The study, which has also been published in the New England Journal of Medicine, showed drops in LDL levels of cholesterol of 40 percent, while good cholesterol, or HDL levels, were lifted by 138 percent.

"These results are promising and serve as the basis for our decision to further develop anacetrapib," said Michael Mendelsohn, a lead doctor at Merck Research Laboratories.

"We look forward to continuing to study anacetrapib in a large cardiovascular clinical outcomes trial."

The company next aims to launch a 30,000 patient study over several years to determine the drug's effects over a wider sample of the population, and will monitor if the drug can reduce the risk of heart attack and stroke.

The 76-week study just completed showed a two-percent death rate due to cardiac arrest or stroke in patients treated with the drug, compared to 2.6 percent who took a placebo, Merck said.

The trial did not analyze the drug's effects on blood pressure, a problem that forces US lab Pfizer to abandon its bid in 2006 to develop a similar drug.

Protect Yourself and Your Kids From Dog Bites

More than 4.7 million people are bitten by dogs each year, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says. Here are the agency's suggestions for keeping a family member's name off the list:

- * If you're shopping for a family dog, choose a breed that's known for being good with children.
- * Don't adopt a dog with a history of aggression or biting.

Airbus wants Rolls Royce compensation for A380 engine

PARIS, France (AFP) - European aircraft maker Airbus said yesterday it would seek compensation from Rolls Royce after one of the British manufacturer's engines failed on a Qantas Airbus A380 super-jumbo.

"We will seek financial compensation from Rolls Royce," an Airbus spokesman said.

"Our production is currently far from normal" and Airbus is incurring additional costs because of the problem with the engine, he said.

The spokesman did not give any figures.

In London, a Rolls Royce spokesman said the company had "no comment" to make on the Airbus statement.

Qantas of Australia said earlier yesterday that Rolls-Royce could have replaced up to 40 engines on A380 super-jumbos operated by various airlines.

Qantas grounded its six A380s powered by Rolls Royce Trent 900 engines after one was forced to make an emergency landing in Singapore on November 4 after one blew out.

Rolls Royce said last week that the failure of a "specific component in the turbine area of the engine" caused the fire and mid-air blowout on the Qantas flight shortly after it took off for Sydney.

In the wake of the emergency, the European Aviation Safety Agency ordered airlines to carry out new inspections of the Rolls-Royce engines.

GM shares soar in record launch as it cuts government stake

NEW YORK CITY (AFP) - General Motors returned triumphantly to Wall Street yesterday with one of the largest stock offerings in history, ending the US government's stint as the beleaguered auto giant's top share holder.

Shares rose nearly seven percent in midday trade after a sale that threw up a firewall between bankruptcy and one and a half years of government control.

The deal, initially priced at 33 dollars a share, could be eventually be worth a total of 23.1 billion dollars across all stock classes.

"Going public is an important milestone on our way to being a new and different and better GM," said chief executive Dan Akerson.

Akerson, who rang the opening bell on the New York Stock Exchange to the sound of a revving engine, said he was optimistic the initial public offering (IPO) would be a success, saying the shares were almost seven times oversubscribed.

President Barack Obama lauded the IPO Wednesday as "a major milestone in the turnaround of not just an iconic company but the entire American auto industry."

Obama, fresh from an election "shellacking" fueled in part by anger at big company bailouts, pointed to GM's resurgence as evidence his policies had worked.

"Supporting the American

France Telecom says online firms should pay for network

MONTPELLIER, France (AFP) - Telephone and Internet provider France Telecom yesterday said Google and others should be billed according to how much traffic they generate on French networks.

"Using the network (of a provider in France) should be subject to a charge. Those who generate a lot of traffic should contribute according to the traffic they generate," the director general of France Telecom Stephane Richard said.

Speaking at a conference of the Icate telecom and audiovisual institute in Montpellier, southern France, he said Internet firms generating lots of online activity should share the cost of updating networks to meet the demand.

France Telecom was making big investments to expand Internet services which should be accompanied by "a fair sharing of value between content providers and operators," he said.

auto industry required tough decisions and shared sacrifices, but it helped save jobs, rescue an industry at the heart of America's manufacturing sector, and make it more competitive for the future," he said.

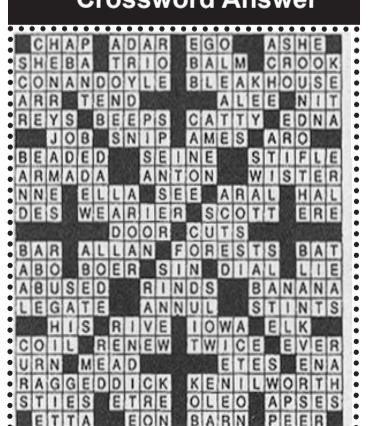

The sale could reduce the US government stake in the automaker to 33 percent, from almost 61 percent before.

The sale will also help the government claw back at least 11.7 billion dollars of the 50 billion taxpayer bailout given to GM.

But it will be a while before the government is out of the picture completely.

Washington would need to sell the remainder of its shares at upwards of 50 dollars a piece -- well above current market value -- to recoup taxpayers money in full.

Sky is searching for friends and family

We would like to introduce Sky to you, one of the donkeys of the Aruban Donkey Sanctuary. This dominant donkey was born there in 2007 and he is living there together with his mother Sasha. Sky was a lovely, quiet animal, until puberty set in. And like with so many youngsters, Sky went on the prowl for female company. First the girls, then the dominant males in the group. It looked like Sky wanted to impress and put his mark on the group, but that did not sit well with the others.

Sky is still searching for his rightful position and that is sometimes difficult. At times he has to be put 'in solitary confinement' to quiet down. Indeed, donkeys resemble humans now and then.

Sky has a chip, just like the other donkeys. This way he can be recognized. The donkeys at the sanctuary are well-cared for: they get their food and drink and when they are sick the vet is called. Yes, they are expensive customers. The volunteers try to cover the cost through organizing all kinds of activities and by selling nice souvenirs in the store. Fortunately there are visitors who adopt a donkey now and then, who donate money or who buy something in the store. They help keep the sanctuary afloat that way.

The volunteers of the sanctuary are now looking for people who wish to adopt Sky. Sky will stay at the sanctuary, of course; the only thing that is needed is AWG. 30 per month pays for his keep. In this way you help support this wonderful donkey, who will quiet down as he ages, as well as the sanctuary. You will receive a nice certificate and a super T-shirt. And if you like, your name and photo will be posted on our website.

Please call the sanctuary at 595-2933 and become Sky's new family; you can also register as an adoptive parent via our website www.arubadonkey.org or deposit a donation on our Aruba Bank account 40.03.025.

Gold Coast Aruba: Great savings for large families on holiday rentals--

Aruba's newest and most innovative gated community has enjoyed steady sales since breaking ground, as many are finding the secure surroundings and outstanding amenities are just what they were looking for before considering purchasing property on the island. Some owners are using the villas or town homes as vacation retreats rather than full time and are taking advantage of Gold Coast's rental services to turn their investment into ready income.

"The greater portion of home owners are using their "home away from home" in Aruba to escape the winter months, or spend holidays with the family on the island," noted Gold Coast developer Fito Croes. To assist in the demand for more complete facilities for groups and families, famed hotelier Ed Malone has been placed in charge of the rental program.

Staying at Gold Coast is a very attractive proposition for those traveling with groups that would require multiple hotel rooms. Two and three bedroom Villas or Town Homes accommodate large numbers and offer extensive land life. All homes come with cable TV, high-speed fiber-optic Internet connection, individual washer/dryer, and are fully air-conditioned. Cribs, high chairs and hair dryers are available for a modest fee. Concierge services to arrange rental cars, spa appointments, activities and restaurant reservations are all part of the package.

Check-in for your holiday escape is conducted in the comfort of your vacation home, not while waiting on line at check-in desk. In every way, Gold Coast seeks to pamper their guests while providing them with the feeling of being in a cozy community, not the normally bustling resort, particularly experienced during the major holidays. If you wish an optimal vacation experience with great savings, visit their website: www.goldcoastaruba.com to get acquainted with the community and the layout, details and availability of accommodations, or call 586-2200 to talk personally to a Gold Coast representative.

Gold Coast accommodations are elegant and spacious, offering privacy for parents or a few couples. Beautifully appointed kitchens and bathrooms grace each abode; barbecues and lounges are provided for friendly cookouts and truly savoring the

Susan Boyle celebrates double chart success

LONDON, England (AFP) — Scottish singing sensation Susan Boyle has become the first female artist to notch up a simultaneous number one album in the US and Britain twice in less than a year, her record company said.

Her album "The Gift" hit the top spot in Britain on Sunday just days after its release, and went to number one across the Atlantic on Wednesday.

Boyle's debut album "I Dreamed A Dream" achieved the same success in both countries following its release in late November last year.

Only The Monkees in 1967 and the Beatles in 1969 have also achieved this feat, according to Sony.

Boyle, 49, who shot to worldwide fame after being discovered on British reality TV show "Britain's Got Talent", said: "I've never felt happier in all my life. This is an amazing result and one I never expected."

The singer became a star after her performance of "I Dreamed A Dream" from the musical "Les Misérables" stunned the audience and judges on the ITV show.

BACK THEN

'Rooi' Taki in rainy season

In the famous old movie "Treasure of the Sierra Madre" starring Humphrey Bogart and winning an Academy Award for its director John Houston, the line "there's gold in them thar hills" became a catchphrase for many years.

And so it was in Aruba.

Gold was first discovered in a rooi (a pool of water formed after a heavy rainfall) in 1824 by 12-year old Willem Rasmijn while he was tending to the family's herd of sheep. He brought the shiny rock to his father who sold it for a minimum amount; when resold for more than 4 times that price, the rush was on. Several nuggets were found in the same Rooi Fluit and Rooi Diamari totalling about 50kg (about 110 lbs.). In 1854 a nugget weighing 2 kg (5 lbs.) was discovered in Rooi Chicki by Nicolaas Eman. It is believed that there are sizable nuggets still in possession of some of Aruba's oldest families.

When the Dutch Commander in charge of Aruba advised the government in the Netherlands that gold had been discovered, Dutch soldiers arrived the next year to help guard the mining areas. That same year, the first shipment of 71 kg. (156 lbs 2 oz.) departed the island heading for Amsterdam aboard the government frigate "Amstel." The ship never reached Holland and speculation still continues about its disappearance.

Although pirates and buccaneers had been marauding the Caribbean and plundering ships and the islands since the late 1400's, there was a slackening off in the 1800's due to more European intervention. Check out the Wikipedia "Piracy in the Caribbean." Avoid the word pirates or zillions of info pops up about Disney World, movies and games.

In a report to the British owners of the Aruba Island Gold Mining Company in 1872, it was stated that the local government worked the mines concentrated in the Miralamar hill area until 1838, when they were abandoned, allowing the local people to work them for their own benefit. However, lack of capital and workers, the process became that of simply washing and seeking "free gold" which the rain would send down the hillsides.

In 1899, the complex was built with all the necessary equipment to mining and processing the gold. The gold was taken in wagons to the foundry at Balashi where the final melting was done. The largest mine at Miralamar was 1.75 meters (almost 6 feet) in diameter. Miners used steam elevators to descend some 900 feet to work in various tunnels. It was closed in 1916 for a variety of economic factors.

The complex is a major site-to-see in the Arikok National Park. The buildings remains are a interesting historically but also as a point that nature still rules and has taken over man-made materials bringing cacti and other plant forms to star at the sight with beautiful views to the north to the sea and of the south side of the island.

Eagles declare energy independence with stadium moves

PHILADELPHIA (AFP) - The Philadelphia Eagles will add solar panels and wind turbines at their home stadium, saying Thursday it will be the world's first stadium with self-generating renewable energy.

The American football club's joint venture with Solar Blue, a Florida firm that will invest 30 million dollars in the project over the next year, will also include a dual-fuel co-generation plant at Lincoln Financial Field.

"The Philadelphia Eagles are proud to take this vital step towards energy independence from fossil fuels," Eagles owner Jeffrey Lurie said.

"It underscores our strong belief that environmentally sensitive policies are consistent with sound business practices."

The plan, scheduled to be finished in time for next September's start of the 2011 National Football League season, will see 80 spiral-shaped wind turbines attached atop the stadium and 2,500 solar panels installed.

Nature gas and bio-diesel fuel will power the co-generation plant.

"With this ground-breaking initiative, the Eagles are taking another significant step forward in their commitment to environmental responsibility," NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell said.

"The NFL is proud to support the Eagles as they set the right example for all of sports."

Surprise finalists Dallas, Colorado seek MLS title

TORONTO (AFP) - FC Dallas and the Colorado Rapids, unlikely contenders each seeking a first crown, meet in Sunday's Major League Soccer Cup final after shocking big-name stars such as David Beckham.

The Rapids, 12-8 with 10 drawn, and Dallas, 12-4 with 14 drawn, played to a pair of draws in the US league's regular season, both coming during an MLS record-tying run of 19 matches without a loss by Dallas.

"They are very competitive at all levels," Dallas goalkeeper Kevin Hartman said. "They are the type of team that's going to be competing for second balls and we have to make sure we match that."

Dallas ousted English star midfielder Beckham and his Los Angeles Galaxy teammates in the semi-finals after earlier dispatching defending champions Real Salt Lake, who denied Beckham's title bid in last year's MLS Cup final.

Colorado, only seventh-best in the league's regular season, knocked out San Jose in the other semi-final after the Earthquakes had eliminated the New York Red Bulls and their French striker Thierry Henry.

The Rapids beat Columbus in the first round.

"Colorado, they are very similar to us," Dallas coach Schellas Hyndman said. "I don't think either team really got the respect from the media or from people in the soccer world to be in the MLS Cup final."

"But when it comes down to it, both teams have played with a lot of character and a lot of heart."

The Rapids lost only three of their final 14 matches, boosting their belief in a first-time title with every triumph.

"Form is confidence," Rapids coach Gary Smith said. "It's confidence not only in your own game, but in your team-mates as well."

"All in all, we're in a very nice place. I think we deserve to be here. We've been competitive when we needed to be. We've shown good resilience."

Dallas players have something to prove as well and lifting the champion's trophy would achieve it.

"There's a little bit of a motivating factor for some of the guys that want to disprove the naysayers," Hartman said. "But the reality is, we think we deserve this."

Longoria's husband 'only flirted' with other woman: reports

ness."

Court papers filed at Los Angeles Superior Court showed that Longoria -- who has reportedly canceled all upcoming appearances -- cited "irreconcilable differences" for the split.

But a television presenter who is a close friend of the actress said Longoria told her she had found hundreds of texts on his cellphone from Erin Barry.

Mario Lopez of the celebrity news show "Extra" said she had also discovered that Parker had cheated on her earlier in their marriage, and stayed in contact with the woman via the Facebook social networking site.

Longoria and 28-year-old Parker, who is one of the top European players in the National Basketball Association, signed a pre-nuptial agreement a month before their wedding, updated two years later, according to People.

Brent Barry's father Rick meanwhile told TMZ that his son was divorcing.

"I feel horrible for my son. I'm in shock. I knew (Erin) was moving out of the house soon and she was the one that filed for divorce. This is the straw that broke the camel's back," said the NBA Hall of Famer.

Parker was asked about the split on Wednesday evening, when he spoke briefly with a clutch of reporters outside the Spurs' locker room before the team's NBA contest against Chicago.

"It's a difficult time right now for me and Eva," said Parker, who has no children with Eva.

Seattle's Hernandez captures Cy Young Award

NEW YORK (AFP) - Seattle's Felix Hernandez, with the best pitching statistics and worst run support in Major League Baseball's American League, won the Cy Young Award on Thursday as the league's top pitcher.

The 24-year-old Venezuelan right-hander received 21 of 28 possible first-place votes with Tampa Bay's David Price drawing four and New York Yankees star C.C. Sabathia garnering the other three in media panel balloting.

Hernandez had the lowest earned-run average in the major leagues at 2.27 and led the American League with 249 2/3 innings pitched, 232 strikeouts, 34 starts and in opponent batting average, keeping foes to .212 at the plate.

But Mariners batters squandered his heroics, with his 3.06 runs per appearance the lowest in the American League.

It left him with only a 13-12 season record, putting him 71-53 for his major league career.

'King Felix' had the fewest victories by any Cy Young Award winner who was a starting pitcher and played a full season.

The choice was always about whether the honored pitcher needed to have produced victories.

Price went 19-6 with a 2.72 earned-run average for the AL East division champion Rays, while Sabathia led the American League with 21 triumphs for the Yankees.

The only other Mariners pitcher to capture a Cy Young Award was Randy Johnson, who took the prize in 1995.

Balloting begins for 60th All-Star Game

LOS ANGELES (AFP) - NBA officials unveiled the ballot for the 60th NBA All-Star Game on Thursday as balloting began to determine the starting line-ups for the annual showdown set to be played in Los Angeles next February.

Fans worldwide can vote daily for their favorite players, including in 20 languages on the league's website, via mobile telephones and at NBA arenas.

For the first time, NBA supporters can print paper ballots at home and mail them to the league.

Wireless and internet balloting will conclude on January 23, six days after paper ballot collections are halted, and All-Star starters will be announced January 27.

The ballot features 120 players, 60 each from the Eastern and Western Conferences, with 24 forwards, 24 guards and 12 centers from each conference. Six reporters who regularly cover the NBA determined the names for the ballot.

Los Angeles will host the all-star match-up for the fifth time, having last done so in 2004.

I can't fight racism on my own, says Balotelli

ROME, Italy (AFP) - Italy striker Mario Balotelli has called on everyone to join the fight against racism after he was abused by both sets of supporters during an international friendly in Austria.

Italy and Romania drew 1-1 in Klagenfurt on Wednesday night but the game caught the headlines for the treatment of the Manchester City forward.

Romanian fans jeered him while his own supporters held up a banner saying: 'No to a multi-cultural Italy'.

Italian police gave the names of 41 members of a right-wing group called 'Ultras Italy' to Austrian police, who may press charges.

Speaking to Sky TV, the Italian of Ghanaian parentage said: "On my own I can't do anything, everyone has to do something against racism.

"Last night I was very disappointed but I'll say it again, I'm not the one who can make these people change.

"Brescia is my city and I live well there but it's also a difficult place, when I was young many kids attacked me because of the colour of my skin.

"What happened yesterday is racism but it's also the stupidity of a few people. I'm sure that if any one of them met me personally, they'd ask for my autograph.

Balotelli was asked if he considered leaving the pitch but said that was never an option due to the pride he feels when representing his country.

"That would have been really too much for a few idiots. And, what's more, it was my second cap," he said.

Fans displaying the banner told Austrian police that it wasn't racism but "merely an opinion", Italian news agency Ansa reported.

Inter Milan's Cameroonian forward Samuel Eto'o, meanwhile, was the victim of jeers during his team's recent game at Cagliari.
